FREESTYLE RECORDS TUMBLE AS MEN SHOW IMPRESSIVE GAINS CALGARY AND TORONTO TEAM WINNERS AGAIN

PATRICIA YOUNG

TORONTO—Forget the nationals, the excitement in winter swimming was at the University Championship. Canada's finest swimmers are staying home and the quality and competition at the meet was outstanding. The measure of how much Canadian university swimming has improved was in the number of national records set.

Five national men's individual and two relay records were broken.

The unending battle between the Universities of Toronto and Calgary continued, but Victoria, UBC, Laval and Alberta are starting to make the fight more interesting. Despite these rising new teams Toronto predictably won the women's title and Calgary took the men's crown.

Four of national records that fell were in the freestyle events. Every distance, except the 100, was improved.

Laval's Claude Lamy got a strong start on the field in the 50 and although his final time was slower than his record setting heat swim, he managed to out-touch Toronto's Blair Hicken and University of Western newcomer, Mark Foris (see box). Hicken turned the tables and won the 100 free ahead of rival Lamy and Calgary rookie Steve VanderMeulen.

The race that had the crowd on the edge of its seat was the 400 free. Turlough O'Hare, swimming for the University of British Columbia, swam stroke for stroke with Gary VanderMeulen, University of Calgary. When they came off the final wall, O'Hare surged ahead and won with a national record of 3:45.92

"It was pretty exciting to set the new Canadian record," said O'Hare "That 400 took a lot out of me.

"Last year I did a 3:50 and I think I swam just as hard this time. The difference was that I held my turns really well. I tried not breathe coming right off my turns. It takes a bit out of me, but it is better in the long run. I got more distance off the wall and that helped me a lot.

"Being this close to the world best is very exciting especially since I'm not known for swimming very fast short course."

VanderMeulen shook off the loss and went on to set his own national record in the 200 free. He took the race out hard from the start and wasn't challenged the entire race. Second place went to Laval's Francois Dionne.

The 1500 free was won by Harry Taylor from the University of Alberta. He churned through the water in 14:57.63, breaking Alex Baumann's 1981 record. It was the first time a Canadian had ever gone under 15 minutes.

Sophie Plante, U. Montreal Marco Chiesa

Taylor paced by Turlough O'Hare for the first 650 metres swam a smooth easy race. After the 700 mark Taylor moved way from the field and finished almost twenty seconds ahead. After an average swim at winter nationals, this race shows that Taylor is seriously preparing for the Olympic trials.

Jon Kelly, University of Victoria, was the only male to scoop two golds. He won the 200 and 400 individual medley. Kelly won the 200 ahead of Tom Ponting of Calgary.

Ponting had to be disappointed with the meet even though he had a spectacular race of his own. He set a national record in the 200 butterfly, bettering his previous record of 1985, but he was disqualified from the 100 for false starting. Some feel that he was forced to jump by the slowness of another swimmer going down for the start. Ponting does have the satisfaction of knowing that his 53.15 set weeks earlier in Bonn is still the second fastest time in Canada. Paul Yelle,

Harry Taylor, Univ. of Alberta Marco Chiesa

Ryerson Polytechnical, went on to win the event, 55.32, which was the first CIAU swimming gold for his college.

Mark Tewksbury, Calgary and Kevin Draxinger, British Columbia, split the backstroke titles. Tewksbury won the sprint in 56.11 and Draxinger was second with 56.86. They reversed positions for the 200. Tewksbury used his dazzling speed to hold off Draxinger for the first 150 metres, but slipped back to second in the final 50. Draxinger is starting to make a habit of winning the 200.

The big winner in the women's events was Marie-Therese Armentero. She is a Swiss student studying bio-physics at Toronto and was a bronze medallist in the 50 free at the 1986 World Championships.

Armentero repeated her performance of last year by winning the 50 and 100 freestyle and the 100 backstroke.

Sophie Plante, University of Montréal, was second in the 100 back. She swam a strong race to win the 200 in 2:17.76 a new CIAU record.

Armentero's teammate, Karin Helmstaedt, also repeated her 1987 sweep of the individual medley events. She was more than second ahead of Suki Brownsdon, Calgary in the 200 and finished the 400 with a comfortable four second lead on Calgary's Sara Frisby.

Brownsdon who hails from England won two golds to go with her IM silver. She took both breaststroke titles for the University of Calgary for the second year in a row.

Karen Ward was a member of the 1984 Olympic team, but fade from sight after that summer. This year she is shining. At winter nationals in Edmonton she medalled in both the 400 and 800 free and handily won those races here.

"It was very hard to keep up the intensity after '84," said Ward. "I didn't imagine that I'd be going for '88.

"I'm a much better technical swimmer than I was. I'm getting stronger, but I need more work.

"This has been a great meet. The quality in the women's swimming has improved. It still has room for improvement, but as the years go on that will change."

The best part of university swimming is the relays. The University of Calgary mustered all the school spirit (and fast sprinters) it could find to pull out two new men's Canadian records. Calgary's 4x100 free relay won gold in a nailbitting race against Toronto, 3:22.46 to 3:22.66. All of Calgary's swimmers were under 51.00. Toronto managed to grab the lead in the third leg when Blair Hicken sped to a 48.90, but couldn't hold off Gary VanderMeulen who anchored Calgary with 49.78.

Calgary set its second national record without much of a challenge from the second place University of Alberta.

Canadian University swimming was at one time considered a forum for swimmers who had wound down their careers, but still wanted to get wet from time to time. Anyone who still holds that view of CIAU swimming is a decade behind in their thinking. This meet is developing into the prime short course meet on our calendar ■

EX-DIVER SHOWS WELL WITH 22.99 IN THE SPRINT FREE

Sprinters read no further. This is the sort of story that makes the nearest slow pitch league look like a good way to spend the summer.

Mark Foris is a University of Western Ontario student and an ex-diver. He won a bronze in the 50 free at the CIAU's and has the fourth fastest short course time this winter.

His interest in swimming started last summer when he was at the University of Toronto with his girlfriend, LYAC swimmer, Anne Posno. She suggested he try a 50 free while she timed. When he finished she told him he had just made the cut-off for the CIAU Championships.

"So I decided to train this year." Which for him means only five days (or 7.5 hours a week) in the pool and three days in the weight room.

"I've made the standard for the Olympic Trials," said the UWO sprinter, "and I'm going to give it a shot.

"Hey, if I make the team that's great and if I don't; it was a one shot deal in the pool anyway. Just a whim." ■

STAR TIPS

SPRINTER ANDREA NUGENT ON RACING THE 100 FREE

The night before or during warm-up get mentally prepared, but not worried. You should try swim your race the same way each time, then there are no surprises. It is so quick. There is not as much time to play around with your strategy as in a 200.

I don't warm-up any differently for the 100 than other events. I do some easy swimming so I can feel my stroke and get loose. At the end do some dives and a few quick burst of speed just to get myself going.

For the first few strokes into the race I concentrate on keeping it smooth and not rushing, so that I don't waste energy. I try not to think of where I am compared to everyone else. I swim my own race.

For the first 50, concentrate on controlled breathing and staying high on the water. Regular breathing makes it easier coming home. You won't tighten up as much.

I take it out fast for the first half. The second 50 is the place to start thinking about working hard— when you're tired. You have to remember the basics.

At the flags I prepare for my turns. Think about not breathing going into the wall. You don't want to waste unnecessary time in the turn. I come over straight, instead of turning to the side, hit the wall and pop off.

It doesn't take any more time to do it right. You get a better push off if you have planted your feet straight.

Think about being streamlined off the wall and then take four kicks. I extend my time underwater because of the wave off the turn. Do a hard kick and pull, just like at the start, to get up on top of the water.

You'll be feeling pretty oxygen depleted at this point. It's important not to breathe going in and coming out of a turn.

After the first breath; relax and try to get back into your breathing rhythm so that you aren't flailing around. If you can keep it under control at this point, you'll be fine.

There is a tendency to lag after coming off the wall. This is where a lot of people die off. It's important not to think about it. Concentrate on not shortening up your stroke, keeping it strong and not panicking. I start thinking about my kick and powering home.

I try to bring it back as hard as I can, but I won't stop taking it out hard just so I can do that. If you've got speed use it.

With 15 metres left I hold my breath and drive for the wall. Don't "put your head down", keep it level so that you are still high on the water.

Where you touch, above or underwater, depends on your position and how far out you are from the wall. It's important to stretch on your side. Reach out, stretch and force arm into the wall. A lot of close races have been lost because of not driving into the finish. Do it in practice and you'll get it right in the race. ■

SIX POPULAR MISCONCEPTIONS

CHARLES POLIQUIN

Charles Poliquin is the National Team Strength Coach and the author of the National Coaching Certification Program's Level 2 and 3 books on strength training.

"It's not what they don't know that bothers me. It's what they know for sure that ain't so," said a famous American entertainer. This quote could well describe my feelings toward the coaching of swimming in Canada. Let's look at the six most common training syndromes that slow down Canada's progress in the world ranks of swimming.

1. Failure to Understand the Supercompensation Process.

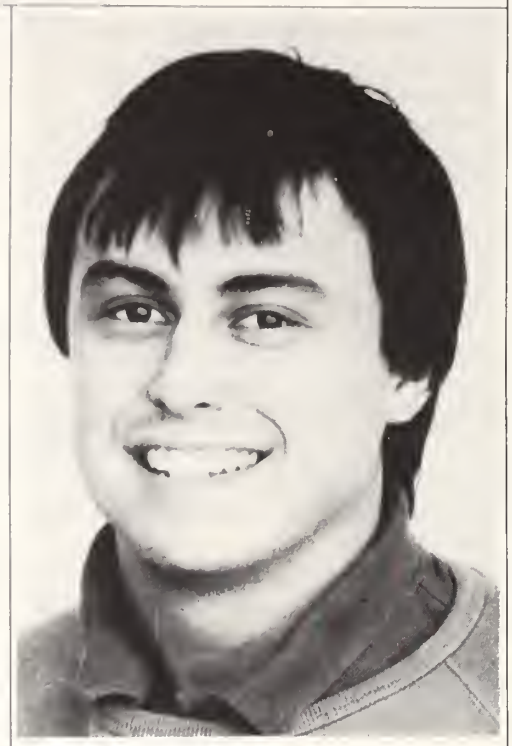
Most clubs are overly concerned with doing extremely high volumes, therefore very little quality work is done by their athletes. It's as if the coaches have forgotten the basic physiological fact that muscles are hooked to the central nervous system. Just because your energy stores are replenished does not mean that you have recovered. You can replenish energy stores quickly, but you also have to consider the nervous system. Variety and quality have been forgotten somewhere along the line.

2. Producing a Baby in One Month by Getting Nine Women Pregnant.

Canadian coaches want results yesterday. Producing world class swimmers is a long process of using progressively more intensive methods. They must first learn how to develop physical qualities and, second, learn to assess the proper ratios of development of these qualities.

3. Waiting to See What the Other One is Doing.

Canadian coaches look up to the way the Europeans train and are constantly trying to find their secret. Why not innovate? Why wait for someone else to validate your own observations? Great coaches have confidence in themselves and are not afraid of leading the way. Charlie Francis, the coach of Ben Johnson, should be a role model to all Canadian coaches in regards to innovating and pioneering the way to improving sports performance.



Charles Poliquin

4. Timed Circuit Training.

Most clubs still use circuit training as a way to increase maximal strength. It is a useless method to improve maximal strength. Here are only two of the many reasons why it doesn't work.

❒ Does not provide enough rest interval to use the right loading to increase maximal strength

❒ The circuit is usually organized so that the resistance overloads some athletes and underloads other ones.

In one club I saw a 10 year old age grouper using the same resistance as a 24-year-old world ranked swimmer.

For some odd reason, swimming coaches and athletes believe that if you are not drenched in sweat, grunting and twisting your face like Stallone does in his Rocky movies, you are not working hard at developing strength.

Remember that the following equation for developing maximal strength is:Maximum tension on muscles from high loads and slow controlled movements + long rest intervals + limited number of exercises = rapid gains in maximal strength.

However Canadian coaches should realize that their strength building equation produces something like this:

Minimum tension on muscle from wimpy weights and uncontrolled movements + 70 exercises at once = A-bunch-of-wimpy-sprinters-when-compared-to-the-Europeans-and-Americans.

Michael Gross, despite his long limbs and lean build, is still 30% stronger than our best 50m sprinters.

5. The Eggs in the Brown Paper Bag Method of Talent Identification.

Let me give you the following analogy. Put 12 eggs in a brown paper bag, spin it around a few times and throw it against the wall. The egg that doesn't break is your talent.

In Canada the following method is a very common way to detect talented swimmers. The vast majority of swimming programs are centred around the training loads that best suits the top swimmer in the program. This situation allows very little individualization of the training load and many potential athletes are being wasted with this attitude.

6. The Pacing Syndrome

Through the present training system, our swimmers have learned too well how to pace themselves. For example, when working at speed, they do not push themselves hard enough to achieve optimal progress. They don't work hard on weights because it will make them sore and they won't feel good the next day. Wake up! Who said that training would be easy .

First things come first. If you want to get strong in a particular cycle, take the right means to achieve this goal, don't make any compromises. Soreness is a reality of training life and many athletes in different sports deal with it daily without complaint.

However, things can easily be changed and the first step is education. Coaches will be able to produce athletes from programs that are on the cutting edge, not by the law of big numbers. The second step is evaluation of training results. Good judgements come from experience, experience comes from bad judgement. Try everyday to learn something new about coaching and you will be on your way to produce world class athletes.■

OLYMPIC SELECTION

GOOD NEWS, BAD NEWS

The good news is that the Olympic Selection Standards have been eased.

The bad news is that the change is pretty slight.

Depending on your viewpoint, it might be good or bad news that National Coach Don Talbot's job has been terminated, effective March 21.

In a dramatic turn of events, Swimming Canada has made the above changes to restore focus on the business at hand for 1988—swimming fast in Seoul.

The four previously named Olympic Coaches will have Paul Bergen added to the staff and Dave Johnson has been appointed senior coach. Additional staff members are: Deryk Snelling, Cliff Barry, Tom Johnson with Trevor Tiffany as General Manager and Ollie Currie as Assistant Manager.

Other changes to the selection process:

Only two alternates will be considered for the freestyle relay.

Alternates for the medley relay will only be considered after the conclusion of the Summer Nationals (second trials).

Relay alternates will be considered as outlined in the March issue.

Swimmers qualified for the team at the Trials may compete in any and all events at Summer Nationals without any restrictions as to shaving etc.

At the discretion of the coaching staff, events without two entries following the Summer Nationals may have additional entries made from the actual team.

Swimmers who qualify for additional events at Summer Nationals (having earlier qualified for one or more individual events) may not be entered in Seoul if the added event results in conflicts for the earlier events. Optimum performance in main events will be the guiding principle.

A training camp will be held July 11-17, probably in southern California. Following the conclusion of Summer Nationals on August 20, the team will assemble for final preparations.

On dry land Walter and Donna Wu look like normal kids. But put them in the water and they turn into a couple of dolphins. British Columbia's Walter and Donna have made quite a splash in swimming circles thanks, in a small part, to the Esso Swim Canada Program. At Imperial Oil, we're proud to help fund swimming programs nationwide for people of all ages. In real human terms, that makes life a little better for us all.

You make us better.

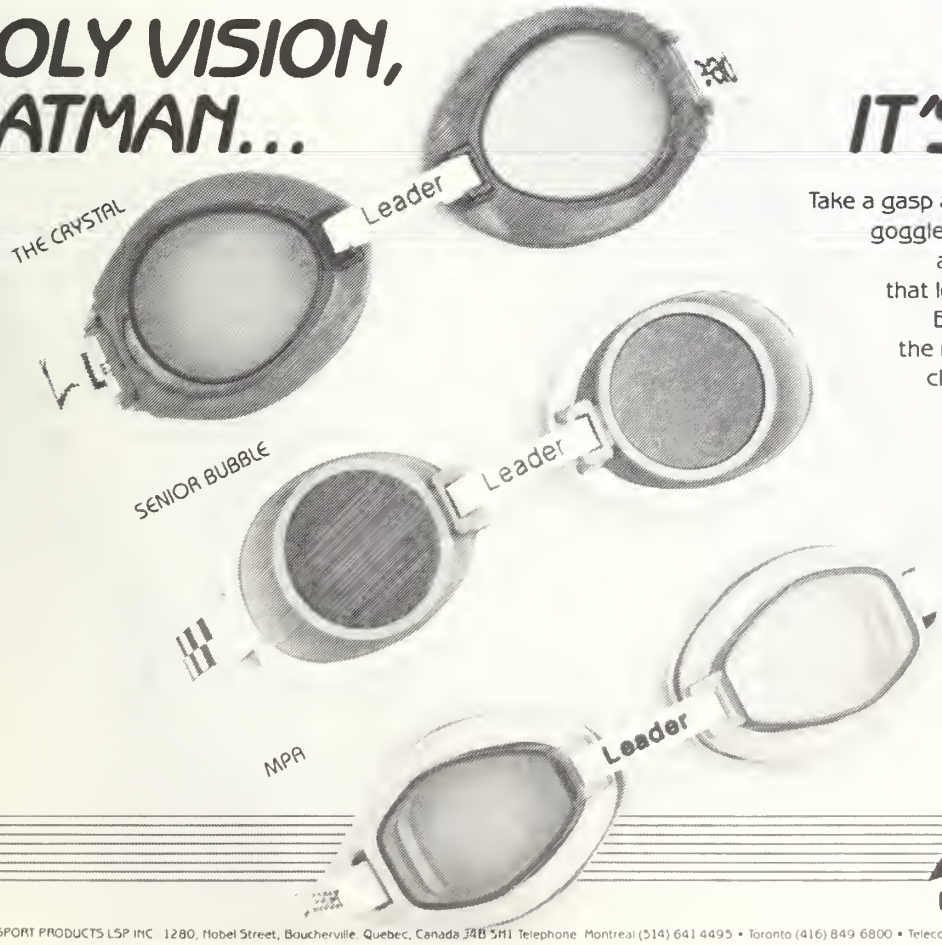
HOLY VISION, BATMAN... IT'S LEADER!



Take a gasp at Leader's new line of world-class goggles: The CRYSTAL, SENIOR BUBBLE, and MPA. These are mean designs that look good, and stay on tight. Why? Because each model is armed with the notorious "poly-seal". A protective cloak against salt and chlorine. And they're tough too – a secret polycarbonate formula that stands up to any avenger.

"Ok, Batman, I think I get the picture. This is some dynamic trio."

BACKWASH

Backwash features short clips, gossip, letters and opinion. Contributions are welcomed. Now for the rumours behind the news.

In search of the promised land. It looks like Canada isn't the only nation that has athletes scrambling to get citizenship. Jens-Peter Berndt defected to the US from East Germany in '83, but couldn't get his US citizenship in time for the '88 Games, so he packed his bags this year and shot over to West Germany to swim for them. West Germany gives automatic citizenship to all East German defectors.

But to complicate things, it turns out that Bernt deserted from the East German army when he defected and according to a treaty between the two nations that makes his automatic citizenship bid void. Bernt is now heading back to the States uncertain of his status.

There are some swimmers who have had success in getting new citizenship. Czechoslovakian defector Jans Bidrman will now be swimming for Sweden and it has just been announced that Tracy McFarlanes' application for American citizenship has been unanimously passed in the House of Representatives. It still has to go through the Senate to make it official, but that is generally a rubber stamp procedure.

McFarlane is/was a Canadian who has lived in the US for most of her life, but neglected to apply early enough for American citizenship. This is good news for McFarlane who has wanted to represent the US at the Olympics all along.

...to love and honour 'til death do us part or I win a gold medal (which ever comes first). After training in the US for several years South African freestyler, Gary Brinkman, now lives in Australia and has his landed immigrant status. He has come up with a extremely novel and pleasant way to short cut the citizenship problem.

Brinkman was recently seen parading up and down the beaches of Surfers Paradise in Queensland, Australia approaching nubile, young lovelies with a placard reading: "Wife wanted—apply within". It seems he has his hopes pinned on marrying one of the bikini brigade so that he can get his Australian citizenship before their Olympic trials.

"Things have started happening," said Brinkman. "I've had a couple of calls. It's a great way to meet girls. If I don't make the Olympics at least I'll have fun."

Just as long as you're doing it for your country Gary.

In the never too old category... How many of you out there remember British breaststroke hotshot David Wilkie? He was the 200 breaststroke world record holder and gold medalist at the 1976 Olympics. Well, he is starting to show up in the results again. At a recent short course meet in Scotland the 34 year-old Wilkie did a 2:24.34 for the 200 breaststroke. This is a little off his 1976 world record of 2:15.11. It would be interesting to find out how long and hard he has been training.

Wilkie is living in Hong Kong and training with his coach of yore, David Haller. Apparently he feels he has a better attitude about training and racing and that he is getting better with age. I don't think any 19 year-olds should discount him if he is on the next block.

Wilkie isn't the only ex-Olympian who is by-passing Masters Swimming in favour of the real stuff. His ex-teammate Margaret Hohmann (nee Kelly) was a finalist in both breaststrokes at the 1976 Olympics and is still training. She is now thirtyish and a mother. At the 1988 Bonn meet she swam 1:10.22 (sc) for the 100 breaststroke. Her Olympic time in 1976 was 1:14.20.

The Brits aren't the only ones who have old dogs coming out of the woods to take a bite at the 1988 crop of puppies. Americans Sandy Neilson, the 1972 Olympic 100 free gold medalist and Jill Sterkel a 100 free finalist at the 1976 Olympics, have been suiting up again and are swimming fast. (Any coaches out there think they can get Wendy, Anne and Cheryl back in the pool for us?)

We would be interested to know about any more of the old invincibles who are coming back, or never left the sport. Send us a note. Remember it's not over until the fat lady sings and to avoid becoming the fat lady, keep swimming.

Life after swimming. American breaststroker Steve Lundquist is proof that there can be life, of some sort, for a swimmer in Hollywood. After his 1984 gold medal swim Lundquist saw a chance to parlay his instant fame and looks for a job in the movies. He is big, blond, blue eyed and has a jaw that could give Dudley Dooright a run for his money.

Well, after a few daytime soap flops, Lundquist has hit the big time. He will be appearing in Return of the Attack of the Killer Tomatoes (Yes, you read that title correctly). This is a sequel to the movie that has the distinction of being one of the worst ever made.

I know I'll be watching the Academy Awards next year with special interest.

Foster faster. Mark Foster, a British sprint specialist (48.97 short course), is now training in Calgary with Deryk Snelling. Foster is one of many that have come down the pipeline from Britain to Calgary. Foster is going to be training with UCSC for two months and then head back to the UK a faster and fitter Foster.

Alex still winning. Alex Baumann was just awarded the Order of Ontario for outstanding achievement. The award is the the province's highest commendation.

Rumour has it that Alex is in the water, but don't get excited; he is de-training. Apparently his times are still pretty spectacular, but then he was never one to do things half way, not even when it comes to winding down a great career.

Position has it's privileges. It's the British way. Adrian Moorhouse and Andrew Jameson have been pre-selected to the British Olympic team. Moorhouse was world ranked number one in the 100 breaststroke last year. Jameson was the 1987 100 fly European champion.

The rational mind.

Dear Editor: I've read a lot of letters regarding Olympic Selection Criteria. I've heard of threats to sue if the standard isn't changed. The thing that really bothers me is the amount of inaccurate information and name calling being done by individuals that "wish to remain anonymous"!

If you don't agree with something—let us know—we may not agree with you, but we'll respect your opinion...at least be man enough to sign your name to your letter.

When I read a letter that is misleading and inaccurate, I would like to judge for myself any intended or unintended prejudices. Sign your name, at least we'll know which direction the slant is leaning.
